RESOLUTIONS

Of the Mt. Sterling Bar Upon the Death of Col. Turner.

Worthy Praise of An Honest Man, Able Lawyer, Great Statesman.

At a meeting of the members of the Mt. Sterling Bar held at the Court House in Mt. Sterling, Kentucky, on Wednesday, September 12th, 1900, to take suitable action on the death of the Hon. Thomas Turner.

On motion of A. B. White, Col. A. T. Wood was made Chairman and on motion of R. H. Winn, R. G. Kern was made Secretary of said meeting. The chairman after stating the object of the said meeting, and upon motion appointed the following named persons as a committee on resolutions: John E. Cooper, A. B. White and J. G. Winn. And on motion appointed W. A. DeVane a Committee to purchase a suitable floral offering; on motion the meeting was adjourned to meet at the Court House on Thursday morning, September 13th, 1900, at nine o'clock to receive and take action on the report of the Committee on resolutions.

Thursday morning, September 13th, 1900, the members of the Mt. Sterling Bar met in presence to adjournment when the Committee on resolutions presented its report.

Eulogistic and touching remarks were made on the motion to adopt said resolution, and also on the life, character and public services of the distinguished dead, by Col. J. S. Har, Judge H. C. McKee, Judge J. H. Har, Judge M. S. Tyler, A. B. White and Col. A. T. Wood.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted and are as follows:

Whereas, the Almighty has called hence the soul of our Brother, Col. Thos. Turner, who died at his home in this city on September 11th, 1900, therefore, be it resolved by the members of the Mt. Sterling Bar, in meeting assembled:

That in Col. Turner's death we have lost a true and esteemed friend, a man of ability and integrity, and that we deeply feel the loss thus visited upon the community and the bar.

That we adopt as part of these resolutions the untold sketch of his life and character; and that we request that it and these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Montgomery Circuit Court, and be published in the papers of this City.

That we extend to the members of his family our deepest sympathy in their bereavement; that we and the officers of the Court attend his funeral in a body, and that the members of the bar wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

The Grim Reaper claims all seasons for his own; the waxing and increasing life in full fruition, and the life which weaves the robe and yokes the low leaf alike await the inevitable hour, the hour whose approach is not of all things certain, and yet of all things most uncertain as to the time of its coming.

Twice with a single twelve-month the Mt. Sterling bar is called to mourn the loss of its oldest member, each a lawyer of unusual ability and distinction, each a man of pronounced individuality, each a leader, each a man of unquestioning conviction in all his beliefs, and of energetic devotion to their advocacy.

The death of the lamented Judge Peters left Col. Turner the oldest member of this Bar; his successor will in the appointed turn give place to another, whose vacant place yet another will in time be called to fill, and so on, until many of whose feet are now pressing life's way on the journey toward its summit, will occupy the venerable and honorable place so lately filled by our departed friend. He who now surveys the way before him most carefully and chooses the best of life's devious paths will contemplate his most restful retrospect the journey he is about to end.

As Thos. Turner was born in Madison county, Ky., on Sept. 10th, 1821, the son of Squire and Elizabeth Stone Turner; his father was one of the most eminent lawyers of this State, so that Col. Turner had not only the influence of natural temperament but of paternal example as well to lead him to the vocation he chose.

After preparation for College in his home schools, he completed his literary education at Centre College,

Danville, Kentucky, after which he took the law course in Transylvania University at Lexington, then the greatest institution of learning west of the Alleghenies, under the tutelage and direction of the distinguished George R. Short; graduating in due course from the law school he was admitted to the practice in his native county, and was Commonwealth's Attorney of his District from 1846 to 1849.

In 1854 Col. Turner married Miss Mary Everett, daughter of Samuel Everett, of this county, and settling here opportunities for advancement in his profession and for material success as well, he soon came to this place to live, which has ever since been his home.

His first wife died in less than two years, leaving him a little daughter; Miss Mary, whose life has been one of the fullest devotion to her father, not only during the strenuous exertions of his political and business career but also while he trod the downward side of life's hill.

In 1856 he married Miss Henrietta Robertson, also a Montgomery County girl, whose life shed cheer and sweetness over husband, children and friends until her long illness terminated in her death some ten years ago. Of her seven sons and one daughter all survive their father except John, who died some six months since.

Col. Turner had the great happiness, the unusual happiness of seeing all his sons comfortably established in business and discharging the obligations of manhood toward themselves and their fellow-men.

His ancestors were of fighting stock, his father having served in the war of 1812 and his grandfather in the revolution, and he himself was a soldier in the war with Mexico, during which he became a Major in the U. S. Army.

In 1861 he represented this District in the Legislature and then devoted himself to the practice of his profession until 1876 when he was elected to Congress. He was also elected for a second term in 1878.

In Congress he was an industrious worker in the interest of his constituents and of the country at large, devoting special efforts to securing appropriations for the improvement of the rivers of our State, in which he was very successful.

In politics he was forceful and aggressive in advocating his principles; he was outspoken always and any man could find out by the asking what he thought. Col. Turner's views on any subject. He earnestly espoused the cause of Democracy always, and in 1856 when many Democrats deserted from a man of the principles held down in the Ohio platform he accepted them all, and was an enthusiastic supporter of William Jennings Bryan and the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 up to the last moment he was able to discuss such matters.

One of the most marked characteristics of Col. Turner was his freedom from old-fogeyism in any form. He subscribed with all his heart the belief that progress is the indispensable law of life and was in sympathy with every advancing step in every line of human endeavor and investigation. In religious matters he was firmly convinced that it had not yet been given to the human mind to grasp all that we may lawfully know of the Infinite, and that each step forward was but an entering wedge which opened the way a little further. He had reflected maturely and coolly upon these lines, and his religion abounded in faith and progression. He had little patience with dogmatic creed that would fix itself unalterably for all time upon tombs which were but the views of men mortal like ourselves.

He was the last of our bar whose career began under the Common Law pleading and practice, and he was always ready to enlarge upon the beauty and philosophy of that system. It was a tender remnant of his that no man could truly appreciate or understand the Code unless he had grounded himself in the Common Law procedure, its history and its rationale. He took evident delight in tracing various provisions of the Code to their origin in the Common Law practice, and believed in this argument of legal questions as paid more attention to principle than to precedent; in fact he had scant patience with what he called "case lawyers," who could give no greater reason for their contention than that they had found in some book a case like their's which some Judge had decided their way.

Of the truthfulness and honesty of his nature, both as a man and as a practicing lawyer, it certainly is not necessary for us to speak. His life has been an open book which all men could read. To a man who does not possess those foundation stones of character, the position and opportunity of a lawyer are but an additional reproach; Col. Turner taught fairly and in the open, and never descended to those tricks of sharp practice or intrigue which are sometimes made to masquerade in the guise of shrewdness.

He saw with tranquility the approaching end of his life and said that he expected to die on his birthday, which in fact he survived but a few hours.

Almost four score years were allotted to him; ripe in years and in honors he has been gathered to the garner. May his dust await in peace the Archangel's summons.

JOHN G. WISE, A. B. WHITE, J. E. COOPER, Committee.

Upon motion the meeting then adjourned to attend the funeral in a body.

Workmen in a Louisville Factory

Pelt an

Officers Boss With Republican Buttons.

The change of sentiment from McKinley to Bryan is shown by a little incident that happened in one of Louisville's big manufacturing recently. In 1896, not more than three of the employees were for Mr. Bryan, and they were afraid to declare themselves.

One Saturday night during the past few weeks one of the bosses, believing the men told this was as they did four years ago, got a box of McKinley buttons to distribute among the men as they passed out after the draw their weekly wages. What was his surprise, after the buttons had been distributed, to find himself deluged with buttons. The men threw them at him, pelting him in the face and about the head with them. About seventy-five men were in the crowd, and all declared that they wanted no more of McKinley.

Returned to Virginia.

A number of years ago, shortly after the extension of the C & O. through this city to Huntington, W. Va., W. L. Morris with his family and mother-in-law, Mrs. Harriet Riggs, moved to this city. After a few years here Mr. Morris died, soon followed to the grave by his beloved wife. This left the mother-in-law with a large and helpless family to support—a brave and determined soul she went about doing her work helped by sons from home and much by her son-in-law John E. Harrington, of Lexington. There was promise of help from Lambert, the oldest of the children, but that boy, bright and capable, went trim had to work, beginning with race horses, until it is said he is nothing but a moral and physical wreck. Some time ago the grandmother leaving this boy at home took the rest of the family of children to Virginia with her. Her stay was pleasant and while there she determined to return to her kinspeople where she might be the better aided in the support of her charge, and returning to gather up her effects found the grandson gone, the house stripped of almost everything valuable.

The good people learning what had occurred, subscribed a fund which was placed in the hands of W. R. Nunneley, who with others, provided the necessities of life, supported the family while here, packed the remnant of household effects, paid the freight and gave the faithful grandmother a small sum with which to defray incidental expenses and now this noble, appreciative woman sends back this card: "I am so thankful for every kindness shown me and my grandchildren by the good people of Mt. Sterling." To see the once happy family now broken returning to their former home almost destitute was surely a pathetic scene. The Lord cares for his poor.

Blood Troubles:

Cancer, Scrofula, Old Sores, Rheumatism, Contagious Blood Poison, Chronic Ulcers.

As the blood contains all the elements necessary to sustain life, it is important that it be kept free of all impurities, or it becomes a source of disease, poisoning instead of nourishing the body, and loss of health is sure to follow. Some poisons enter the blood from without, through the skin by absorption, or inoculation; others from within, as when waste products accumulate in the system and ferment, allowing disease germs to develop and be taken into the circulation. While all blood troubles have a common origin, each has some peculiarity to distinguish it from the others. Contagious Blood Poison, Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, Eczema and other blood diseases can be distinguished by a certain skin, skin eruptions or inflammation appearing on the skin. Every blood disease shows sooner or later on the outside of the body, or where it finds the least resistance. Many mistake the sore or outward sign for the real disease, and attempt a cure by the use of salves, liniments and other external applications. Valuable time is lost and no permanent benefit derived from such treatment.

BLOOD TROUBLES REQUIRE BLOOD REMEDIES: the poison must be completely and permanently eradicated—the blood reinforced, purified and cleansed, and the disease goes deeper and saps the very life. Mercury, potash and arsenic, the treatment usually prescribed in this class of diseases, are violent poisons, even when taken in small doses—never cure, but do much harm by adding another poison to the already overburdened, diseased blood.

Free Medical Treatment.—Our Medical Department is in charge of skilled physicians, who have made blood and skin diseases a life study, and you have healthy, and at the same time builds up the general health. S. S. & S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known, and the only one that can reach deep-seated blood troubles. A record of 50 years of successful cures proves it to be a reliable, unfailing specific for all blood and skin troubles.

Federal Control.
Mr. Yerkes is reported as saying that the Republican party is the only political party that stands for fairness in elections. In this connection he approved the action of Judge Evans, of the Federal Court, in punishing men for misconduct at State elections.

Whether Judge Evans' construction of the law is correct or not is a question not suitable for argument here. It has gone to an Appellate Court for review, and the question will doubtless be decided in due time. But it appears singular that his action should be cited as evidence that the Republican party stands for fairness in elections. The grand juries in the Federal Court, some of them composed, as was reported, entirely of Republicans, or nearly so, have indicted only Democrats. Can we infer from this that Republicans have been guilty of no offenses against the election laws? It is known that the Republicans last year employed an enormous fund to corrupt voters. Some of this must have been used to induce negroes to vote the Republican ticket, for it is known that it is sometimes necessary to pay these voters to vote their sentiments, while others are inclined to vote the Democratic ticket unless deterred therefrom by solid arguments that come within their comprehension. None of these, however, was discovered by the Federal grand jury.

Nothing is to be said, of course, in behalf of men engaged in corrupting the ballot. It is a great and growing evil, but precautions are comparatively rare, probably because men cognizant of the facts often have reasons of their own for not taking the matter into the courts. It is a lamentable fact that both parties use a great deal of money in elections, not always legitimately, but the Republicans employ a great deal more than the Democrats because they are able to get more from trusts and others who they have agreed to favor by legislation or in some other way. There is no question better settled than that the Republicans are and for years have been the chief offenders against the integrity of the ballot. Within the past few weeks they have been threatening favored interests in Philadelphia that Bryan will be elected unless they subscribe $500,000 to the Republican campaign fund. It would be an insult to the intelligence of the reader to argue that such a fund is intended entirely for legitimate purposes. It is a corruption fund that is wanted, and everybody knows it.

The question of law involved in the prosecution in the Federal Courts is one of great interest because it involves the right of States to conduct their own elections free from Federal interference. That question was supposed to be settled years ago, but it has been revived. But as a political question it is absurd to refer to transactions in a Federal Court, directed solely against one party, as a proof that the other party stands for fair elections. Mr. Yerkes does not say that this court is a Republican court. Though the Judge happens to be a Republican,

BOURBON COUNTY ITEMS.

Equi's R. F. Morris, a highly respected citizen of Paris, is 91 years old.

Wm. King, ex-Bourbon, died at Danvers, Colo., Sept. 17, 1900.

His wife, nee Slaton, of Mason county.

The Dr. Collins farm near Jacksonville, containing 291 acres, was purchased by Hon. W. H. McMillan, of Paris, for $38 per acre.

Mr. J. S. Switzer has purchased of B. F. Remington the residence adjoining the latter's home on Higgins avenue. Price, $2,000.

At Little Rock, Fielding Stone and Roy Gillispie, both died Friday, Sept. 15.

The former is the grandfather of the latter, Mr. Stone dying of pneumonia and the latter of kidney trouble.

Lead Mines to be Worked.—In an interview with Mr. Rimmon he said work would be resumed on the lead veins in East Paris on Saturday, 15th, as parties interested would arrive by that time to push the work.

Two Mormon elders recently arrived at Judge H. C. Smith for permission to preach at the Court-house, but the judge firmly refused their request. The elders then resumed their house to house canvass to introduce their infamous and vicious doctrine in the homes of Bourbon.

There is a new disease affecting the cattle at Millersburg and its diagnosis and prognosis are uncertain. The eye, one or both, becomes inflamed and watery and is often discharging. Several head of stock have lost both eyes, absolutely. It is either infectious or contagious. There have been isolated cases discovered but in each herd where seen several head are diseased.

Louis Pfleizer, of Chicago, the Western agent of Schwarzhild, Stuberger & Co., bought of C. Alexander, Sr., 525 head of extra fine export cattle at the highest price paid any one this year. The cattle will be delivered in November and will be shipped from New York, Nov. 24th, in two fast freight vessels, as the cattle are especially for the Christmas market in London. This fine herd was bought and cared for personally by C. Alexander, Jr., who has received many compliments for his judgment in handling and producing such a superior and select lot of big cattle.

Mr. Pfleizer also purchased of Thos. Henry Clay, of this county, 327 head of excellent export cattle.

There are some women who seem to be peculiarly youthful. The grown daughters are conspicuous as well as children, and the color in the mother's cheeks, the brightness in her eyes, the roundness of her form, all speak of abounding health. What is her secret? She is at the middle age of life when so many women are worn, wasted and faded, and yet time has only ripened her charms. The secret of this marvellously health and beauty may be told in the brief phrase, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The general health of woman is so intimately related to the local health of the delicate womanly organs, that where these are diseased, the whole body must suffer. "Favorite Prescription" cures the debilitating drains, heals ulcerations and inflammation, cures female weakness and imparts to the delicate female organs natural vigor and vitality. Women who have lost their health and their beauty have been made "robust and ruddy checked" by the use of this marvellous medicine.

Freely Respond.

The response of the whole country to Galveston's cry for help has been prompt and generous. Scarcely a city is without its relief fund. Commercial bodies have acted promptly. Food and clothing, surgeons and nurses have been hurried southward with all speed. The nation is giving freely of its abundance, and great as is the disaster, the sympathy and liberality of the people are greater.

"I had a running sore on my leg for several years," writes Mr. J. A. Forest of Chippewa Falls, Wis., "and spent hundreds of dollars in trying to get it healed. Two boxes of Baurer Salve entirely cured it."

INTERESTING BIBLES.

Cromwell's Pocket Edition for Soldiers—Jefferson's Study Book Text.

The most interesting collection of Bibles in the world is in the British and Foreign Bible society, in Queen Victoria street, London, although there are more ancient and valuable specimens in the British museum. The best collection in the United States is in the Lenox library, New York. The Bible society in New York has a large variety of Bibles in all languages, which I understand are ultimately to be added to the Lenox collection. The finest private collection in the country belongs to Mr. S. Brainerd Pratt, of Boston.

There is a good collection of Bibles in the National museum at Washington, and among others one of Cromwell's pocket Bibles, which he gave to every soldier in his army, with instructions to carry it in a pocket made especially for that purpose in the waistcoat over the heart. It is not a complete Bible, but contains extracts from the Scriptures which are especially applicable to war and to a soldier's life.

Thomas Jefferson's Bible, which is in the museum, is a copy of a text from the evangelist's copy of an ordinary printed Bible and is noted in a book according to their historical sequence. On the margin are a number of annotations in Jefferson's handwriting. Two maps—one of Palestine and the other of the ancient world—are pasted at the front. The section of the Roman as under the authority of which Christ was crucified, is quoted, also in his handwriting. It was Jefferson's purpose to have this arrangement of the Bible published for common use, after cutting out all contradictory and ambiguous passages.

In a letter to John Adams, dated October 18, 1819, in which he has cut up for his own use, verse by verse, out of the printed Book, all of the matter which is evidently Christ's, and describes it as "the sublime and benevolent code of morals which has ever been offered to man."—W. E. Curtis, in Chicago Record.

HIGH PRICED FISH.

Recently Imported by a New Yorker from Japan.

Mr. Otto Eggeling, of Harlem, has just imported from Japan 30 Japanese goldfish, or fantails, said to be the most expensive pet fish in the world. Mr. Eggeling says that the beautiful specimens he has just received cannot be duplicated in this country, and he regards himself as the only proud possessor in the United States of this luxury. The fish cost from $25 to $30 apiece.

These Japanese fish are of the color of the rainbow, some are spotted with bright gold and silver tints; others in blue and yellow spots, and others again in greenish and dark brown hues. They have big heads and large, bulging eyes, which Mr. Eggeling says are not natural, but have been made to grow so by some artificial means used by the Japanese to make the fish look odd. But the most striking feature of the Japanese goldfish is the tail. It is long and graceful, branching off in different directions, and, when the sun's rays strike it, beautiful colors seem to emanate from its surface. These fishes seem to be aware of their beauty, for they flit about with that pride and calm assurance which the peacock possesses.

While there is a great risk in importing these fish from far-off Japan, not one died on the long journey, and Mr. Eggeling says they are long lived and healthy, and do not require any extra care to keep them well and happy.—N. Y. Herald.

Very Costly Wine.

The most expensive wine manufactured in the world is champagne, as most people imagine. It is Rhine wine from the private vineyard of Prince Metternich, and sells for about 30 shillings a quart. The vineyard is on the side of a hill overlooking the Rhine, which is not accessible except to human feet. As a result all the work has to be done by hand. The grapes have to be carried down the hill on the shoulders of men, and in a like manner fertilizers have to be transported up the acclivity. The sun shines on the vineyard only at certain hours of the day, and in this way the grape receives a flavor that distinguishes the wine from that of any other Rhine brand.

One Minute Cough Cure is the only harmless that produces immediate relief. Try it.

Mt. Sterling Military and Collegiate School.

In an address delivered last week before the University of Chicago our own brave Gen. Wheeler declared that the destiny of the human race was to be guided in the future largely by the government of the United States, and that his observations among the peoples of the Pacific islands and those of China formerly impressed upon him the importance of all institutions of learning devoting a full measure of effort to instilling a spirit of chivalry and patriotic devotion.

A military school awakens and kindles this spirit of chivalry and patriotic devotion among the boys and girls, and to keep it fresh and strong, our national flag shall float day by day during the session over the Mt. Sterling Military and Collegiate School.

That boys may command they must learn to obey. Obedience to those in authority is a lesson that can not be learned too early in life. All cadets in this institution will be in full uniform and under military training and discipline.

Session opens September 3, 1900.
